

I am writing to express my concern over the possibility of deregulating broadband Internet service. All this will do is allow large phone companies to run all independent ISP's out of business. With the ISP's out of the way prices will skyrocket. Having had the same ISP since the inception of the internet I find this completely out of control. Competition is healthy for consumers. Monopolies not. Please keep this in mind when reviewing Bell South's request for deregulation. Be an agency for the people and not for large corporate conglomerates for a change.
